Mercado vs Supermercado en inglés

Chef Ravee:

Hi there! It's Chef Ravee here. I hope you're doing well. I have a delicious Chicken Parmesan recipe I want to try for our upcoming menu. So, can you please help me with some grocery shopping? Here's the list of ingredients and where to find them:

Head to the local market for these. You can find the juiciest tomatoes and the freshest basil there. Make sure to pick up some garlic, I think we're out.

We need top-quality chicken breasts for this dish. Visit the butcher's shop in town. They always have the freshest cuts. Ask for boneless, skinless chicken breasts, and they'll gladly assist you.

For breadcrumbs, stop by the bakery. Get a fresh loaf of bread, preferably Italian, and ask them to slice it for you. When you get back here, we'll toast it and make our own breadcrumbs.

Head to the supermarket for this one. Look for the grated Parmesan cheese in the dairy section. It's there on the shelves.

We're going to need dried oregano and black pepper. You can find these at the supermarket as well, in the spice aisle.

Big favor! Can you please stop by the drugstore on your way back to pick up some aspirin? My head is pounding!

Once you've gathered all the ingredients, please double-check to ensure you have everything on the list. Remember to select the best-quality products! We can't disappoint the food critic that's visiting us this upcoming week.

If you have any questions, feel free to give me a call back. Thanks for your help! Let's meet here, at the restaurant, around midday.

Can't wait to prepare a mouthwatering Chicken Parmesan together. Good luck!
