Common Time Expressions

Kai: Hi Lina, I wanted to talk about our project. We were assigned a task last week, right?

Lina: Yes, that's right, Kai. We were given a project last week, and the deadline is next Wednesday. I think we need to discuss our progress.

Kai: Absolutely, Lina. I'm working on my part right now. I hope to finish it by tomorrow morning. What about you?

Lina: Well, I finished my part 2 hours ago. So, I think we're on the right track. However, we still need to meet with our manager on Friday to present our work.

Kai: That's true. I remember the manager saying that we need to show our progress on Friday. What time does that meeting start?

Lina: The meeting is at 10 AM, so we should prepare our presentation on Thursday evening. We can meet up tomorrow afternoon to review and make any necessary changes.

Kai: Great, Lina. I can bring the charts and data we need for the presentation. I'll do that on Thursday. But before that, I'd like to check something from our previous report. Can you help me with that?

Lina: Of course, Kai. What do you need help with? Is it about the data we collected last month?

Kai: Yes, it is. I need to compare it with the new data we have for this project.

Lina: Okay, I can help you with that. Let's plan to meet today during lunch, and we can go over the data together.

Kai: Sounds good, Lina. Let's meet at 12:30 PM in the break room. I appreciate your help with this.

Lina: No problem, Kai. We're a team, and we need to support each other. See you today at 12:30.

Kai: Thanks, Lina. I'll see you then, and we can discuss the data in more detail.
